

I have been a ham since April of 2005. I got my Technician Class License with cw, both on the same evening. I have been enjoying working cw since and am now studying for the General Class License.

I do not think that code should be eliminated for testing. Studying to achieve this made me have a goal that I worked at hard. It made me feel good when I was handed that piece of paper with a call sign printed on it. I now feel that I have certainly achieved something of value. I am proud at what I accomplished to become a ham radio operator.
